BAD DREAMS

Nightmare, Restlessness and Night sweats All Caused By Indigestion.

Half of the nervousness in the world, all of the disturbing dreams and night sweats can be ended in a few weeks by a simple, inexpensive treatment guaranteed by Kelly & Pollard.

Upset stomach is the cause of nervousness and bad dreams. Your food is lying in your stomach undigested and fermenting. It is forming poisonous gases which irritate the pneumogastric nerve that leads direct from the brain, and ends in a network of tiny branches running through the stomach.

It is also the irritation of this great pneumogastric nerve that causes headache, many times people have severe headaches and know they are caused by the stomach, but do not know how.

If you are nervous, have dreams or night sweats, and do not sleep sound at night, get a 50 cent box of MI-Q-NA stomach tablets and take one or two after or with meals. MI-Q-NA stomach tablets relieve distressed stomach in 5 minutes. Sold by Kelly & Pollard, druggists everywhere, who guarantee MI-Q-NA to cure indigestion, or money back.

MI-Q-NA is the most efficient prescription for indigestion ever written. It has been successfully used in every disease of the stomach. For nausea, belching of gas, constipation, sea and car sickness, and vomiting of pregnancy it has no equal. Write Booth's MI-Q-NA, Buffalo, N. Y., for free trial samples.

Happy, Happy, Use TIZ

A Marvel For Sore Feet. Acts Right Off

Sore Feet? Never After Using TIZ—Good-bye sore feet, aching feet, swollen feet, sweaty feet, smelly feet, tired feet.

Good-bye corns, callouses and bunions and raw spots.

You've never tried anything like TIZ before for your feet. It is different from anything ever before sold.

It acts at once and makes the feet feel remarkably fresh and sore-proof.

TIZ is not a powder. Powders and other foot remedies clog up the pores.

TIZ draws out all poisonous exudations which bring on soreness of the feet, and is the only remedy that does.

TIZ cleans out every pore and glorifies the feet—your feet.

You'll never limp again or draw up your face in pain, and you'll forget about your corns, bunions and callouses. You'll feel like a new person.

If you don't find this can true after trying a box of TIZ, you can get your money right back.

TIZ is for sale at all druggists at 25 cents per box, or it will be sent you direct, if you wish, from Walter Luther Dodge & Co., Chicago, Ill. Recommended and sold by Knoblauch Drug Co., Inc.

Telling His Dad About the Only Girl By Kenneth Harris

THE Old Gentleman settled himself comfortably in his well-broken leather chair, after previously placing his cigar and customary mineral water within easy reach. He did this with great deliberation and calmness, finally crossing one plump leg over the other and unbuttoning the two lower buttons of his waistcoat.

"Now, go ahead, Bill," he said.

"Wait a moment. Have a cigar."

"I'll smoke my pipe, sir," said the young man, who strongly resembled him.

In turn, he settled himself in his chair and made a protracted business of filling and lighting his black briar.

"All set?" inquired the Old Gentleman at last.

"All set, sir," replied Bill. He pulled steadily at his pipe.

"Well?"

"I guess I covered the ground pretty thoroughly in my letter."

"Oh, no you didn't," said the Old Gentleman. "That's just what you didn't do, my son. You covered three sheets of note paper pretty thoroughly, but the only thing I could get out of it was that you had met a girl that you thought you wanted to marry."

"Thought," echoed Bill.

"That's what I gathered," said the Old Gentleman, calmly. "You do think so, don't you?"

"I'm going to marry her," declared Bill, very positively indeed.

"Unimportant Little Details."

"Oh?" said the Old Gentleman. "I thought you said something about getting my consent."

"Of course I want to get your consent, sir," said the young man.

"But if you don't, you'll manage to rub along without it. Is that about the size of it, son?"

Bill looked embarrassed. "I know that the minute you see her, you'll approve," he hedged. "I know that all along. All you've got to do is just to see her, sir. She's about the—"

"Don't blush, Bill," said the Old Gentleman. "Go right ahead. That's what I want to know what she is. Tell me, help you out a little. In the first place, has she got any money?"

"I'm sure I don't know," replied the young man. "I was very careless of me, but I neglected asking her."

"Naturally, an unimportant little detail like that," said the Old Gentleman, ironically.

"To be frank with you, I don't think she's got a cent," said Bill.

"Well, if a woman has every other desirable attribute, one can sometimes afford to dispense with money," said the Old Gentleman, "particularly if one's father has a scads of it."

"See here, Dad, I didn't count on that," said the young man.

"Oh, I know you didn't count on that," said the Old Gentleman. "You're just that kind of a chap. She is beautiful as a dream, isn't she?"

"She is a mighty good looking girl," said Bill, rather sulkily.

"Tall?"

"Not particularly."

"Short?"

"She's just about right. She's not too short and not too tall."

"H-m-m," said the Old Gentleman. "How about her nose, now—Greek, Roman or snub? Or have you noticed?"

"It's a very nice kind of a nose," said Bill.

the former Union soldiers, but from ex-Confederates.

"In all cities, when possible," he said, "I urged joint meetings of the blue and the gray. We had many gatherings of this character, and the more loyal and patriotic sentiments were ever uttered than by the men who fought on the other side."

"Are you not pleased to learn that our comrades are living in peace and harmony with our late enemies? This is as it should be. Both armies were composed of brave men and they should do mutually respect each other. We of the north can testify that no braver troops were ever marshaled for conflict than our late enemies—and we now realize that no men ever made greater sacrifices for what they believed to be right than our former foes."

"Be Magnanimous."

"Comrades, we were the victors, and we can afford to be magnanimous to our late foes. It is easy for the victor to forgive, but when the vanquished absolves himself from all bitterness he has truly gained the most cherished trait of a noble character. We won—they lost. We returned to our homes with shouts of victory ringing in our ears—our cause triumphant. They were defeated, their cause lost, and they returned to homes destroyed, barns empty, money worthless, slaves free and ruin all about them. Any but a brave people would have yielded to these adverse conditions—not so with them. Bravely as they fought during the war, they now fought the battles of life, and the splendid growth and development of this country since the close of the war is the south's greatest and most enduring monument. United as we are now, our country is destined to make a new era of progress. We have by our united efforts advanced to the highest pinnacle of fame, and become a mighty world power with our influence everywhere potential. Who does not rejoice that our union is one and indivisible, and will remain so forever?"

HITCHCOCK IS GUEST OF CITY

cock said, "I had left there before the election and the report that I was there again after the election was a mistake. There is no such thing as a political situation as far as I know."

"I have been in the west for a vacation trip. I felt that I needed a rest and decided to come to the west. I am feeling fine now and am going back to Washington for work."

Here Only Few Minutes.

Postmaster general Hitchcock was in El Paso but 18 minutes, leaving on the 11:15 a. m. train for El Paso.

He was accompanied by postmaster Smith, who had a conference with him regarding the new postoffice and political conditions in the district. Mr. Hitchcock looked the picture of health while here, and is the same dapper young man who was here with president Taft during the Taft-Diaz celebration last fall.

"What color eyes?"

"Blue."

Some Red Hair Pretty.

"Does that mean red hair?"

"No, sir; not on your life," replied Bill, indignantly.

"Calm yourself," urged the Old Gentleman. "Some red hair is pretty. I suppose I'm boring you with my questions, but I wanted to get an idea of what my future daughter-in-law was like. Medium height, nice nose and blue eyes, is she included in your plumpness, or has she a slender form?"

"It's just about right," said Bill.

"If I could see her"—began the Old Gentleman.

"That's what I want you to do," said Bill, eagerly. "I propose."

"If I could see her, I could punch a better description of her on a railroad ticket than the one you're giving me," continued the Old Gentleman. "Is she one of these highly educated young women?"

"Not too highly educated," said Bill.

"Just educated enough."

"I see. How about accomplishments?"

"She plays," answered Bill, "and sings."

"Divinely, of course?"

"Well, I like to listen to her."

"Do you think she could get up at 5 in the morning and do a week's washing by noon?"

"I don't think she'll ever have to," said Bill.

"Any other accomplishments?"

"I think so, but I haven't paid any particular attention to them. What you want to do is see her, dad."

"Given to athletics?"

"Not excessively."

"Not sickly, I hope?"

"You wouldn't think so if you saw her."

"Amiable disposition?"

Bill seemed a little at fault. "Well, not so amiable you'd want to throw things at her," he replied. "Just about amiable enough."

"Is she seriously inclined, or disposed to be giddy?"

"Just an average girl."

"Just about right. She can be serious when there's any need of it, and she can be as giddy as the next one when she takes a notion. She's not silly, if that's what you mean. And she ain't soulful."

"Just an average sort of a girl, I imagine," said the Old Gentleman.

"Well, that's about all I could expect."

"Get red in the face. 'An average sort of a girl' is one thing, but 'Well, say! Average! I never saw a girl in my life that could come within a mile of her, and I've seen some that were supposed to have considerable class. She's got 'em all skinned. If anybody can show me a girl hanging out and over the top jar, which was filled with blood, King was in a stupor. When aroused he took exception to the actions of the hotel people."

On the table were four letters, one addressed to the American consul, in which he gave details regarding his actions and the location of his family and relatives. He stated that he had been at work for the Southern Pacific lines of Mexico as an engineer of construction. He has but one leg.
